“ My father in law Jo Acaldo used to always talk about Maurice he had great fun memories of working with him and respected him greatly Mr Jo retired before I started working at Exxon. I was working in Tanks when I worked with Maurice every day I always got to work a little early than Maurice part of the reason was to hear Maurice singing every day when he walked through the door he was always happy and it was contagious to everyone he met. You don't meet a lot people in your life like Maurice I am honored to have known him I hope to see him again in Heaven where he will be sitting next to Jesus having a fun time.

“ I worked with Maurice at ExxonMobil around 2002-2004. I was 24 and Maurice was experienced with wisdom to share. I loved his stories and spending days on the construction site with him were a joy. He was larger than life and always made the Dutch workers we worked and ate with laugh. The lessons he taught me in those few short years continue to guide me today. My thoughts and prayers are with his family during this difficult time, but know that he touched many and all felt his impact. Truly larger than life in the best way.

“ Maurice was a great friend and coworker. I have many great memories working with him at the Refinery and outside the Refinery. He was always top notch in everything he did. I can remember numerous occasions when I would ask or tell him something, he would always say " Are You Serious". He will be missed my many who knew him. JE smith
