“ Ronald and I both had old Chevrolets in high school, he had a 56 and I had a 55, we were riding in his 56 had just passed the railroad tracks headed toward his house, when for no reason he handed me the steering wheel, I said did you think this out, he reached in the seat and grabbed a pair of vice grips thinking he could drive that car with them, it made one turn and came off, turning into his drive way hit a big bump turning the unbolted seat over we glanced off a small tree an stopped with a thud against the shop, joe was on the porch I have never seen anyone laugh that hard
